Sky's The Limit invites you to an ice cream social on Saturday, May 21 to celebrate as Celestron—a leading designer, manufacturer, and importer of high-quality optical products—makes a major donation to the local Observatory and Nature Center project. Kevin Kawai and Michelle Meskill of Celestron will present a 14" C14 OTA Show Telescope and a CGE Pro Mount, their flagship premium mount.

Starting at 7 PM, guests can visit the Nature Trail, Orrery, and Meditation Garden to learn about Sky's The Limit programs and activities. Following the presentation and celebration, guests will enjoy viewing Saturn and other celestial objects, and join interactive demonstrations involving the Earth and Moon.

There's no charge for this event. Just bring your chairs and a flashlight! Sky's The Limit is located adjacent to Joshua Tree National Park in Twentynine Palms. Just before the Park entrance on Utah Trail, the Observatory and Nature Center is on the east side.

Since manufacturing its first telescope in 1960, Celestron has become one of the world's leading telescope makers and continues to receive numerous industry and consumer media accolades and awards for product innovation. For more information, visit www.Celestron.com.

Sky's The Limit Observatory and Nature Center is a grassroots, all-volunteer organization. It is an Affiliate of the Basin Wide Foundation, a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization, Tax ID # 33-0688147.
